JOHN WESLEY HONORS COLLEGE

Ashley Whitney Fowler Class of 2007

Ashley (Whitney) Fowler currently lives in the suburbs of Washington, D.C., where she moved after graduating from Indiana Wesleyan. She works in in human resources for the U.S. Green Building Council, a national nonprofit organization seeking to transform the building marketplace to sustainability. The council has taught her a good deal about "being green" and the impact that sustainability can have on buildings, homes, schools, neighborhoods, and more.

Ashley recently married her long-time friend and hometown sweetheart, Josh, who is employed as a youth director at a growing, active church. Ashley stays busy attending youth events and teaching junior-high Sunday school. She also loves the cultural and historic aspects of D.C. and the surrounding area, and she enjoys taking advantage of the many free events and museums in the city.
