
Economists and theologians usually inhabit different intellectual worlds. Economists investigate the workings of markets and tend to set ethical questions aside. Theologians, anxious to take up concerns raised by market outcomes, often dismiss economics and lose insights into the influence of market incentives on individual behavior. After teaching for fifteen years as a Harvard-trained Economist, Mary L. Hirschfeld pursued a PhD in Theology at the University of Notre Dame. Aquinas and the Market is the fruit of her desire to bring Economics and Theology into a more profitable dialogue about questions of human flourishing.

Dr. Hirschfeld serves as Associate Professor of Economics and Theology in the Department of the Humanities, Villanova University.
