Aaron Baker
Class of 2007

What is your hometown?
Van Wert, Ohio

What was your major?
Political Science/Pre-Law, History

What is your current career/vocation?
Attorney

In what ways have your experiences in the Honors College prepared you for life now, professionally and personally?
The critical thinking skills I gained through the Honors College were especially meaningful to me through law school. I loved that the Honors College almost expected its students to attend graduate school—I do not think I would have been as apt to consider further education without the prodding and confidence of the Honors College faculty.

If you could give one piece of advice to students who are now in Honors College, what would it be?
Only after I attended graduate school did I have the chance to really gauge the quality of the IWU experience. It did not take long for me to realize that Honors College students are especially privileged to have a knowledgeable and warm faculty.