

TRIANGLE

Spring 2007

A Perfect Season

Lady Wildcats are National Champs
page 4

Students of Character . . .

A study of university presidents reported in a recent issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education listed the top constituent groups presidents say give them the greatest reward. It was no surprise to me to learn that being with students and sharing in their lives was number one on the list!

As I reflect on my first year as Indiana Wesleyan University's president, my activities and involvement with our students has been the most rewarding of all that call for my attention. Don't misunderstand me, I am stimulated by and enjoy working with faculty, staff, alumni, the Board, and a myriad of local, regional and national constituencies. In fact, one of the defining aspects of being president is the diversity of activities and experiences. But, students remind me of why we exist!

During this year's spring break, my wife Teresa and I took some personal time and followed the men's and women's basketball teams to the National NAIA Basketball Tournaments in Missouri and Iowa. It was an invigorating respite from the fast-paced life of the presidency and gave us opportunity to spend quality time with our students.

All year long IWU has had two of the finest basketball teams in the nation. The men were invited to the national tournament for the first time ever and advanced to the "elite eight," and our women won the national championship after being undefeated and ranked No. 1 in the nation for the entire year! To have a basketball season with 68 wins and only 5 losses between the two teams is a story any university would be proud to tell.

But, more important than the winning for me is how our young men and women have represented the values we hold dear at IWU. Our student athletes have truly conducted themselves in ways that honor God and IWU. The NAIA speaks of "Champions of Character," and IWU's mission statement declares our purpose to develop students in "character, leadership and scholarship." There is a significant congruence between the goals of the NAIA and IWU.

We experienced a lot of basketball during the first two weeks of March – driving back and forth between Branson, Missouri, and Sioux City, Iowa. In the heat of the contest when the refs were making calls that went the other way and the players were getting knocked down, our student athletes were models of self-control.

As Indiana Wesleyan University continues to gain national prominence as a premier Christian university in the Wesleyan tradition, all of us who wear IWU sweatshirts, display IWU license plates and proudly tell others we are from IWU, we must remember that our first allegiance is to Christ. And, more than representing the school we love – we represent Him!

Our basketball teams are visible, high-profile examples of the outstanding student body at Indiana Wesleyan University. They represented us well this spring on a national stage. They exhibited character – Christlikeness.

Go Wildcats! You make us proud!

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Henry Smith". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a long horizontal line extending from the end.

MISSION STATEMENT

Indiana Wesleyan University is a Christ-centered academic community committed to changing the world by developing students in character, scholarship and leadership.

FEATURE ARTICLES

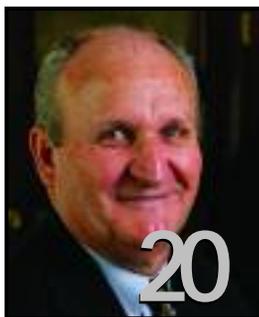

IWU.biz Off To Great Start

When Elyia Veale graduates from IWU in April, she will take a year's business experience with her, thanks to an innovative new program in the Student Center.

Her Students Say Ms. Shults is Cool

Anna Shults, who earned her master's degree at IWU, is Indiana's Teacher of the Year. She will be at the White House when the National Teacher of the Year is chosen.

When IWU Called, Munday Answered

Terry Munday was an answer to prayer when he gave up a career as a successful school superintendent to become IWU's Vice President for Advancement.

Physics Professor Going to Washington

Dr. Willem Van De Merwe has received a U.S. State Department fellowship and will be a visiting scholar in Washington during the 2007-08 academic year.

FEATURE SECTIONS

NAIA Tourney Roundup	4
Planned Giving	9
Job Opportunities	21
Campus News	24
Alumni News	27

ON THE COVER: Sarah McGill, Katy Hinkle, Liz Howerth, Katrina Spitler and Stephanie Culp were senior leaders on IWU's NAIA Division II National Championship team.

INDIANA WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY | TRIANGLE | Spring 2007, Vol. 87, No. 3 | EDITOR Alan Miller | ART DIRECTOR Gary Phillips '92 | GRAPHIC DESIGNER Kory Pence '02
ALUMNI NEWS EDITOR Krista Brown '05. The TRIANGLE (issn 10666893) is published quarterly, free to alumni, by Indiana Wesleyan University. Second-class postage paid at Marion, Indiana, and additional offices. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Indiana Wesleyan University, 4201 South Washington Street, Marion, Indiana 46953-4974. Internet address: <http://www.indwes.edu>

38-0

REGULAR SEASON

IWU	71	St. Mary of the Woods	32
IWU	67	Madonna University	52
IWU	69	Cedarville University	59
IWU	78	IU-South Bend	54
IWU	72	Hannibal-LaGrange	55
IWU	55	St. Gregory's	15
IWU	75	Urbana University	50
IWU	68	Madonna University	44
IWU	60	Cornerstone University	57
IWU	52	Goshen College	28
IWU	62	Spring Arbor University	48
IWU	80	Indiana Tech	67
IWU	74	Grace College	44
IWU	65	Lindsey Wilson	46
IWU	64	St. Francis (Illinois)	56
IWU	57	Spalding University	50
IWU	86	Malone College	55
IWU	58	Marian College	42
IWU	63	Bethel College	50
IWU	80	Huntington University	54
IWU	74	St. Francis University	51
IWU	73	Taylor University	57
IWU	68	Goshen College	33
IWU	52	Spring Arbor University	45
IWU	64	Grace College	36
IWU	62	Marian College	55
IWU	66	Bethel College	50
IWU	68	Huntington University	49
IWU	54	St. Francis University	46
IWU	56	Taylor University	51

MCC TOURNEY

IWU	74	Goshen College	36
IWU	46	Taylor University	41
IWU	58	St. Francis University	49

NAIA TOURNEY

IWU	69	St. Joseph (Vermont)	25
IWU	61	Tabor (Kansas)	44
IWU	61	Hastings (Nebraska)	52
IWU	93	Cedarville University	56
IWU	48	College of the Ozarks	34

Coach Steve Brooks guided Lady Wildcats to national championship.

National Champs!

IWU Lady Wildcats Complete Perfect Season

The journey began with a whimper, on October 31, 2006, in the 1,000-seat gymnasium of St. Mary-of-the-Woods College in southwestern Indiana. The score: Indiana Wesleyan University 72, St. Mary-of-the-Woods 32.

The journey ended with a bang on March 13, 2007, in the 6,300-seat Gateway Arena in Sioux City, Iowa. The score: Indiana Wesleyan University 48, College of the Ozarks 34.

In between, during what would become a 133-day odyssey, the Indiana Wesleyan University Lady Wildcats basketball team would play – and win – another 36 games.

When the final buzzer sounded in Sioux City, the Lady Wildcats were the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Division II National Champions – the first undefeated team in NAIA history.

The closest any team would come to IWU during the perfect 38-0 run would be cross-county rival Taylor University. Taylor lost to the Lady Wildcats three times, with two of the games decided by just five points.

The closest any team would come to IWU during the five-game national tourney was defending champion Hastings (Nebraska), which fell 61-52 in the third round. The Lady Wildcats' average margin of victory in the NAIA tourney was 24 points.

The team was, in a word that would be repeated in post-game interviews, awesome! The Lady Wildcats brought home more than a championship trophy, though.

- IWU's Steve Brooks was named NAIA Division II Coach of the Year for the tourney. Two days later, the Women's Basketball Coaches Association named Brooks its Coach of the Year.
- Senior Liz Howerth was named the tourney's Most Valuable Player. She finished her tournament career as the fifth leading scorer (239 points) and leading rebounder (98 rebounds) in tourney history. Howerth also was named to the All-Tournament First Team (for the third consecutive year) and to the 2007 Division II All-America first team.
- IWU's Stephanie Culp won the NAIA Tournament Hustle Award, after finishing the title game with five steals and four assists.

The championship game ended the career of five Lady Wildcat seniors: Howerth, Culp, Katrina Spitler, Katy Hinkle and Sarah McGill. During their four years at IWU, they took the women's basketball program to national prominence.

Over the last four years, the Lady Wildcats had a combined record of 128-18, won three Mid-Central College Conference championships – and went to the NAIA Division II National Tourney four straight years.

Awesome, indeed.

Howerth, Brooks Earn MCC Honors

Indiana Wesleyan University's senior forward Liz Howerth was named Mid-Central College Conference Player of the Year, and her head coach, Steve Brooks, was named Coach of the Year by the conference.

Howerth led the No. 1-ranked Lady Wildcats to an undefeated 30-0 regular season before sweeping three games in the MCC tourney. She averaged 20.7 points, 7.8 rebounds, 3.4 assists and 2.5 steals per game.

Coach Brooks, head coach of the Lady Wildcats since 1999, was honored for leading his team to a perfect season. The team was ranked No. 1 in NAIA Division II for nine weeks in a row.

Howerth also was named to the All-Conference First Team. Senior forward Sarah McGill was named to the All-Conference Second Team, and senior guard Katrina Spitler was recognized as an All-Conference Honorable Mention.

Liz Howerth

Elite Eight

Men's Basketball Team Earns First-ever Trip to NAIA Nationals

By Justin Bryant

Two years ago, the Indiana Wesleyan University men's basketball team finished ninth in the Mid-Central College Conference and was the only MCC team that failed to qualify for the conference tournament.

This year, the Wildcats won their first two games in the NAIA Division II national tourney to finish in the Elite Eight. The team was ranked No. 9 in NAIA Division II and was seeded 10th in the national tourney in Point Lookout, Mo.

It was a season of firsts:

- Most wins in a season: 30.
(The Wildcats lost only five games.)
- Most conference wins in a season: 14.
- First MCC regular season championship.
- First trip to the men's national tourney.

The Wildcats' transition from the bottom of the conference to being one of the top 10 teams in the nation coincides with the hiring two years ago of Coach Greg Tonagel. But Coach Tonagel gives the credit to his players.

"First and foremost, a lot of (the turnaround) has to do with the players and what they've done and accomplished," Coach Tonagel says. "We really have challenged these guys to work hard, believe in themselves and believe in what we were asking them to do. I think we pushed them pretty hard and they've responded well. And we were fortunate enough to really recruit some talented kids."

Besides senior Joel Tonagel, the starters consisted of all Coach Tonagel recruits, including freshmen Zach Coverstone and DeJovaun Sawyer-Davis and sophomores Jon Moon and Antonio Murrell.

The young players' contributions played a major factor, but Coach Tonagel said the performance of the players remaining from the Wildcats' team that finished last in the MCC during the 2004-2005 season was equally important.

"We didn't set any specific goals at the beginning of the season that we wanted to win x-amount of games," Coach Tonagel said. "We just said we wanted to become the best team we could be, and I really think we've gotten the most out of these guys."

"Looking back, I can't think of a moment where these guys walked onto the floor and didn't give their best effort. And that's really hard to see in today's college basketball. Every game, these guys showed up and played hard every game and played together as a team every game and it came together to give us some records."

Justin Bryant is the Sports Editor of The Sojourn, IWU's student newspaper. He also is IWU's Student Sports Information Director.

Greg Tonagel has reversed IWU basketball

30-5

REGULAR SEASON

IWU	80	Sienna Heights University	53
IWU	71	Concordia University	52
IWU	79	Judson College	53
IWU	94	Andrews University	42
IWU	83	Purdue Calumet	46
IWU	85	Goshen College	79
IWU	87	Spring Arbor University	71
IWU	74	Judson College	55
IWU	68	Grace College	47
IWU	75	IU-South Bend	59
IWU	59	IUPUI	66
IWU	74	Urbana University	61
IWU	89	Ohio Christian University	37
IWU	107	IU-East	44
IWU	60	Webber International	58
IWU	83	Brewton-Parker College	50
IWU	67	Marian College	33
IWU	93	Bethel College	58
IWU	71	Huntington University	85
IWU	89	St. Francis University	77
IWU	69	Taylor University	39
IWU	64	Goshen College	41
IWU	60	Spring Arbor University	57
IWU	76	Grace College	72
IWU	78	Marian College	66
IWU	79	Bethel College	76
IWU	71	Huntington University	76
IWU	76	St. Francis University	71
IWU	80	Taylor University	48

MCC TOURNEY

IWU	79	Spring Arbor University	53
IWU	79	St. Francis University	73
IWU	83	Huntington University	93

NAIA TOURNEY

IWU	80	Aquinas College (Michigan)	54
IWU	95	Oregon Tech	82
IWU	68	Mid-America Nazarene	77

Tonagel Coach of Year for Second Time in Two Years

Indiana Wesleyan University's men's basketball coach Greg Tonagel was named Mid-Central College Conference Coach of the Year for the second time in his two-year coaching career at IWU.

Coach Tonagel guided the Wildcats to a record-breaking season that included the first MCC men's basketball championship in IWU history, a school best 30 wins in one season and 14 wins in the conference.

Senior guard Joel Tonagel was named to the All-Conference First Team after averaging 12.6 points and 3.5 assists per game. Sophomore guard Jon Moon was named to the All-Conference Second Team after leading the Wildcats in scoring with 13.8 points per game.

Sophomore guard Antonio Murrell and freshman forward DeJovaun Sawyer-Davis were named to the All-Conference Third Team while freshman center Zach Coverstone received All-Conference Honorable Mention recognition. Sawyer-Davis also was named to the All-Newcomer team.

Student Center:

Largest IWU Building is Truly a Jewel

The Student Center.

It is the largest jewel in Indiana Wesleyan University's architectural crown.

As the University has grown, the Student Center has grown with it. For example:

- When the 72,000-square-foot building opened in 1994, there were 1,753 traditional students on the Marion campus.
- By 2001, when a 48,000-square-foot addition opened, enrollment had climbed to 2,161 students.
- And enrollment stood at almost 3,000 when the latest 67,000-square-foot addition opened in the fall of 2006.

The Student Center – which now sprawls over 187,000 square feet – is the largest building on campus. If Selby and Race streets were still in place as measuring sticks, the building would be almost two city blocks long.

The Student Center is, in fact, much like a small city. It has a cafeteria and a food court. It has a convenience store and a post office. It has a bookstore and a movie theater. It has offices and a health center.

Of course, it has McCann Coffee Co. And it even has The Daily Planet, a room named after the fictitious newsroom in Superman, where students can keep up with what's going on in the world.

The Student Center, in summary, has verve and panache. It has pizzazz. It is, in a word, the envy of visiting students – and administrators – from other colleges.

If you look deep within the soul of that sprawling building, however, you will find the spirit of an earlier facility that previous generations of students knew as Baldwin Center.

Baldwin Center opened in 1969 and served as the dining facility for Marion College, and later IWU, for 25 years. The college had 848 students when the 19,000-square-foot center opened.

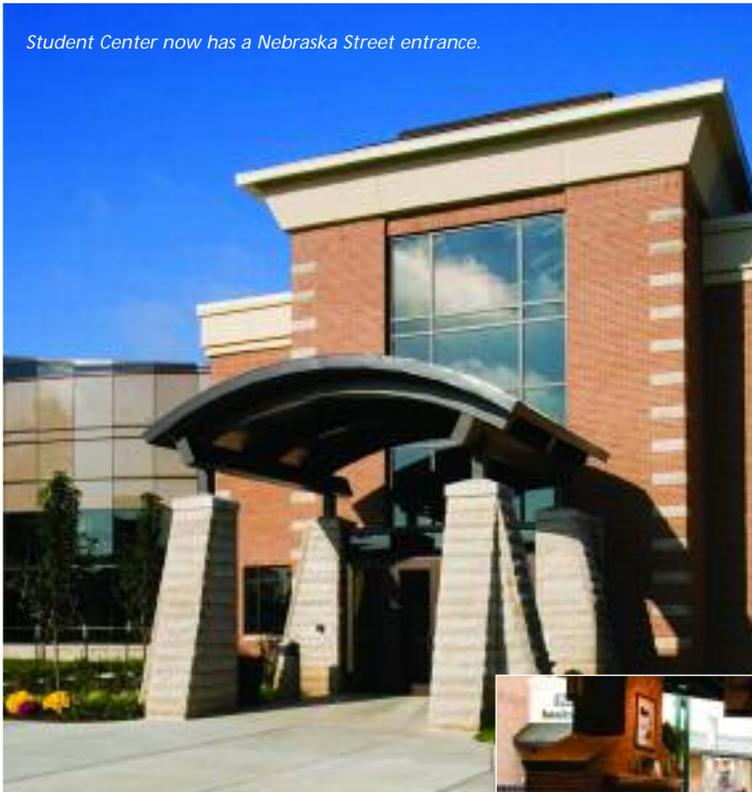

Baldwin had two serving lines, although only one was open initially. There were four dining rooms, which could be opened into one large dining area. And there were two private dining rooms.

In something of an understatement, Dr. Marj Elder, in her history of IWU, called Baldwin Center “a remarkable improvement over the basement of Teter Hall!”

The first phase of IWU's current Student Center was, literally, built around Baldwin Center. That's why the spirit of Baldwin still resides inside the Student Center's four walls.

Photos of the Student Center don't do the building justice. But, until you can come to see it in person, we hope you will enjoy this photo tour.

Student Center now has a Nebraska Street entrance.

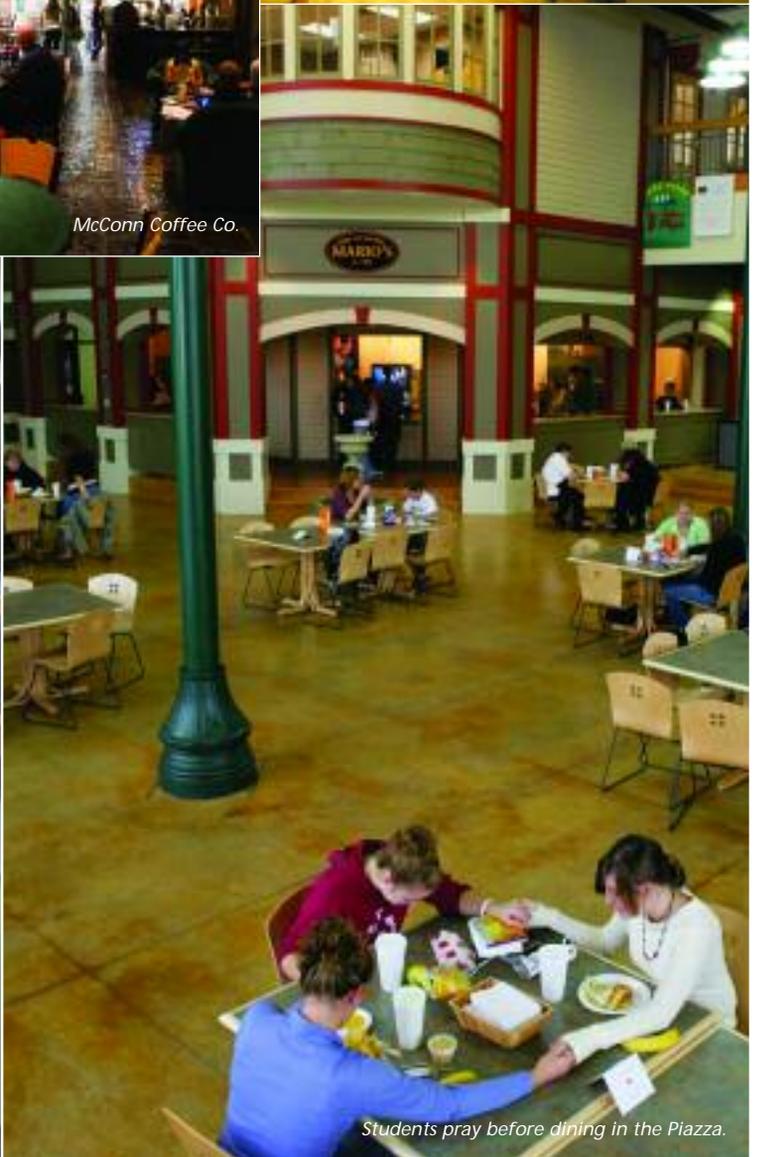

Daily Planet is the campus newsroom.

McCann Coffee Co.

Glass-roofed atrium is main thoroughfare.

Students pray before dining in the Plaza.

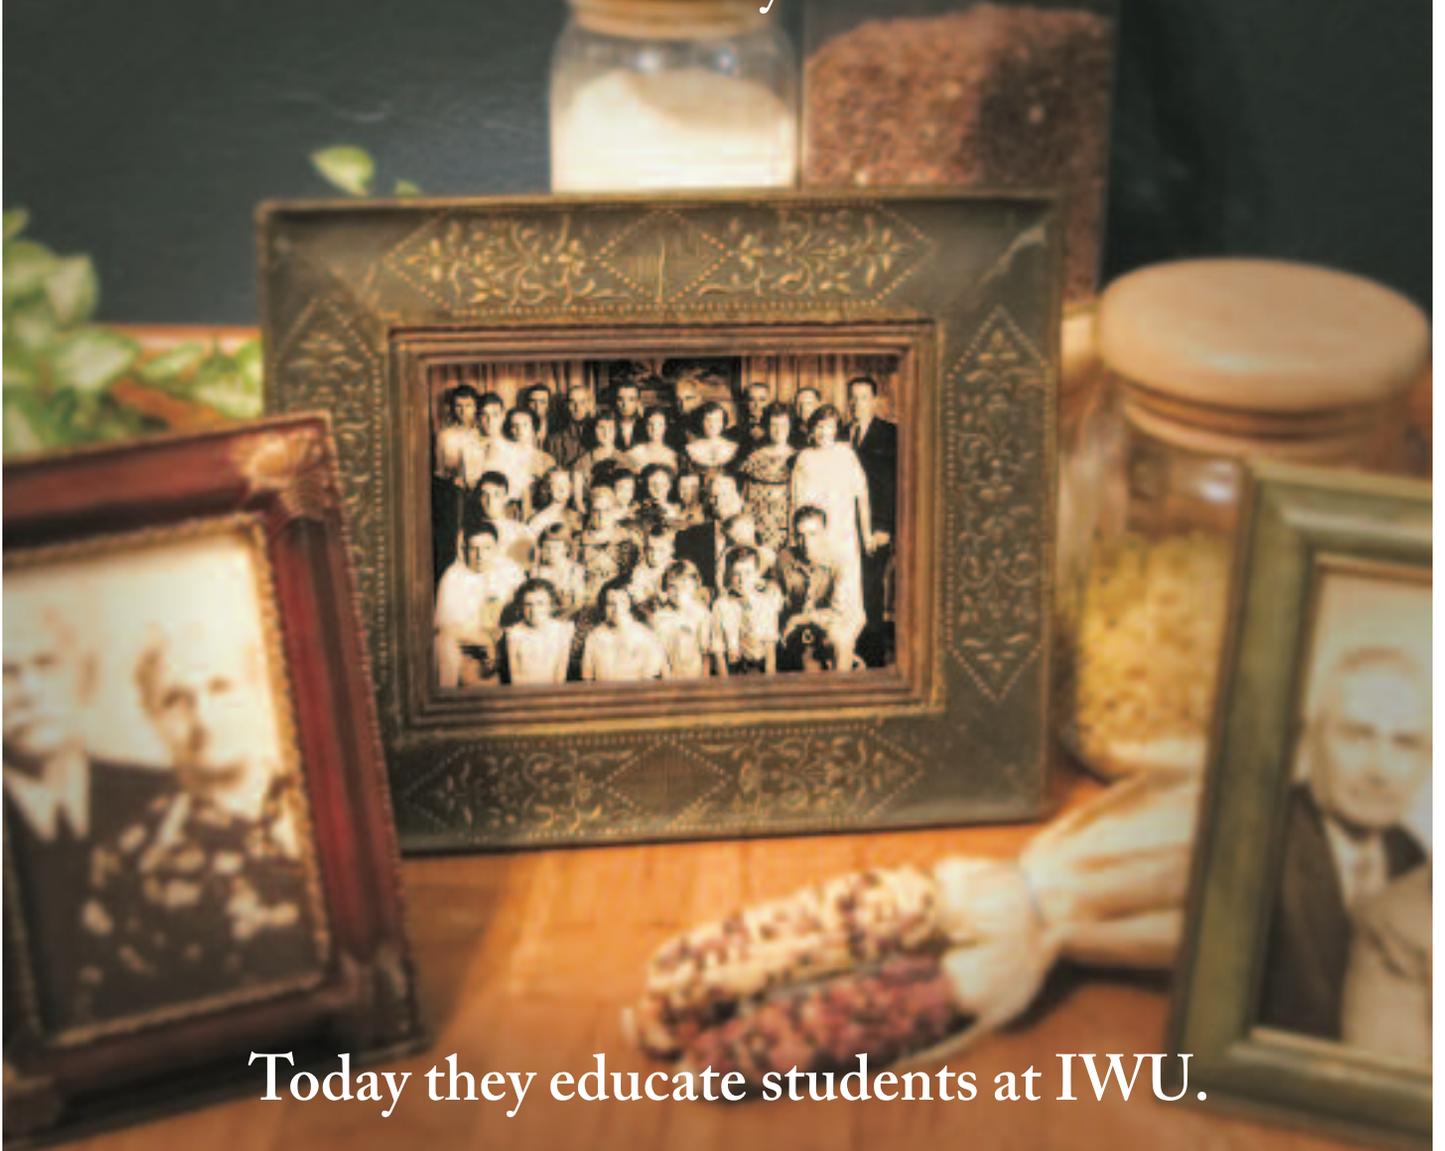

Life Calling and Leadership Center is now housed in the Student Center.

Expanded Wildcat food court offers variety of dining choices.

The Shugart family farmed in South Marion in the early 1900s.

Today they educate students at IWU.

The Shugart family farmed the land now home to the Marion Airport. They were a large industrious family and believed in education. One family member, Cora Maud Shugart Gerber, married and moved away. But she never forgot her heritage and roots. When she died in 1973, she set up the Henry and Anna Shugart Trust (in memory of her parents) to provide scholarships at IWU specifically for Grant County students. Thank you, Cora and the rest of the Shugarts, for continuing to make an impact in Grant County.

INDIANA WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

Create a Legacy... Make a Difference

Brian Lewis • 765-677-2466

IWU.biz

Offers Incentives for Student-Run Businesses

The latest expansion of the Indiana Wesleyan University Student Center has meant expanded opportunities for business students to get some hands-on experience in running a business.

Building on the successful experience of McConn Coffee Co., which opened in 2001, additional space has been provided in the Student Center for a new entrepreneurial project called IWU.biz.

That's BIZ, as in Business Incubator Zone. IWU Student Development, the Division of Business and The Innovative Network sponsor the project.

In the fall of 2005, junior business students were invited to develop an entrepreneurial business idea and then develop a business plan. Eight plans were submitted for the two available storefronts in the Student Center.

The winning plans, chosen by a committee of IWU professors and local businesspeople, were submitted by:

- Elyia Veale, for a hair salon called Wildcutz. Ms. Veale is a management and marketing major.
- Chad Hathaway and Dani Weaver, for a specialty gift shop called Giannes. Mr. Hathaway is an accounting major; Ms. Weaver is a management major.

Both businesses opened in September 2006 and, according to the IWU.biz guidelines, will close in April to make way for two new businesses that will open in September 2007.

The 2007 competition has been narrowed to four finalists: a movie rental store, a consignment shop, a fruit shake-up shop and an updated version of Wildcutz.

Even though Ms. Veale will graduate in April, she is excited about the proposal that would keep Wildcutz in business for another academic year.

"We've done well, and students have responded," Ms. Veale says. "I see this as a positive thing. We have regular customers, and it would be neat to see this grow and expand."

Mr. Hathaway says that managing all aspects of a retail business – especially dealing with customers – has been a great learning experience.

"One thing we learned is that business really is slow in January, but it picked up in February," he says. "By the end of second semester, we will have our loan paid off and still will have a profit."

The two stores were given $3,000 start-up loans, which were to be repaid by the end of the year. A percentage of profits will be used for student stipends, and the rest of the money will go to a fund to support the project.

"Eventually, the goal is to make IWU.biz self-sustaining and maybe have enough money to start a scholarship fund," Mr. Hathaway says.

Another student-operated business, the 1920 Art Gallery, also opened in September in the Student Center. The store deals exclusively in artwork by IWU art majors.

While the two IWU.biz stores will change each year, McConn Coffee Co. and the art gallery will be permanent businesses.

"Our student-run businesses give students a lot of management experience but, just as important, it gets their creative juices flowing," says Dr. Harriet Rojas, Associate Professor of Business Administration. "It all fits together well with IWU's new major in entrepreneurship."

1920 Art Gallery

The gallery will re-open in mid-September after being closed for the summer months. Kara Wood has been chosen to succeed Rachel Henderson as the curator for the 2007-2008 academic year.

The gallery would like to invite Indiana Wesleyan University alumni to submit artwork for an upcoming art show in the fall. Beginning in mid-August, artwork may be sent to:

1920 Art Gallery
Indiana Wesleyan University
4201 S. Washington St.
Marion, IN 46953

The phone number for the gallery is 765-677-2080. And the new curator may be contacted at kara.wood@student.indwes.edu.

'Eventually, the goal is to make IWU.biz self-sustaining and maybe have enough money to start a scholarship fund,'
Chad Hathaway

Rachel Henderson is the curator of the 1920 art gallery.

Women have played significant roles in the 87-year history of Indiana Wesleyan University, and they continue to do so – in so many different ways. In the profiles that follow, we invite you to meet five women who are leaving their mark on different facets of

Women of Distinction

‘Being a pastor’s daughter and growing up in a Wesleyan parsonage was a wonderful experience.’

Miss Mary Ellen Martin A Life Devoted to Leaders of The Wesleyan Church

Mary Ellen Martin learned, virtually in an instant, what career she did not want to pursue.

As a junior education major at what then was Marion College, Miss Martin was sent to a nearby public school to observe a classroom full of fourth graders for the afternoon. After lunch, the students returned to the classroom – but the teacher didn’t.

“I had these 32 pairs of eyes staring at me, and I didn’t know what to do,” she says. “My mind went blank. I was totally uncomfortable with the situation, and I decided then that I was not cut out to be a teacher.”

Miss Martin returned to her parents’ home in Cincinnati to decide what she wanted to do. She first staffed a candy counter at a ritzy Cincinnati restaurant before taking secretarial jobs in Marion and Cincinnati.

Her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Eldon Martin, gave her this advice: “Think carefully and whatever you decide to do, we will back you.”

In 1970, Miss Martin accepted an offer to become the secretary for Dr. J.D. Abbott, one of the General Superintendents of The Wesleyan Church. Her decision would begin a lifetime of service to the Church that now spans nearly 40 years.

Most important, it was a career choice that certainly must have pleased Miss Martin’s parents, who also devoted their lives to serving The Wesleyan Church. Her father was a pastor and district official.

“Being a pastor’s daughter and growing up in a Wesleyan parsonage was a wonderful experience,” she says. “My parents were gentle people, wonderful role models.”

Her Wesleyan background would serve Miss Martin well as she served as Dr. Abbott’s secretary for 17 years at the denomination’s world headquarters in Marion.

When the headquarters moved to Indianapolis in 1987, she chose to remain in Marion.

“I didn’t want to leave Marion, and I didn’t want to commute to Indianapolis,” Miss Martin says. “It was a hard decision, but it was the right one.”

Instead, she took a job at Indiana Wesleyan University so she could remain in Marion. She worked as the Religion Division secretary for one year, before moving to the President’s Office where she has completed 19 years of service.

Miss Martin’s voice has been the first to greet the thousands of people who have called or come to the president’s office – or the general superintendents’ offices – over nearly 40 years. And she has provided assurance to nervous guests that college presidents and church leaders are just regular people.

“When prospective faculty members came for their mandatory interview by the president, I could tell how nervous they were when I shook hands with them,” Miss Martin says. “If it was a limp, sweaty handshake, I tried to assure them that everything would be OK.”

Miss Martin has another skill that is not on display in the offices where she has worked, but is familiar to everyone who has known her since childhood. She is a skilled pianist.

“I started taking lessons when I was in the second grade, and first started playing the piano in church when I was in the fifth grade,” she says. “I was the regular pianist in my father’s church by the time I was in high school.”

She now plays two Sundays each month for worship services at a health-care facility in Marion.

Dr. Sharon Drury

A Late Bloomer Who Can Identify with Adult Learners

Dr. Sharon Drury is, by her own admission, a late bloomer. In her case, though, that has proven to be an asset.

Dr. Drury was, until March, the Dean of Indiana Wesleyan University’s College of Adult and Professional Studies. In that role, she provided academic leadership for the 13,000-plus students – many of them also late bloomers – who are enrolled in adult education programs.

Dr. Drury never misses an opportunity to share her story with students who are struggling to juggle their academic programs with family responsibilities and professional careers.

“I try to help people understand that there is still a lot of time to get an education after your kids are raised,” she says. “You don’t have to do everything at the same time. You don’t have to have it all at once.

‘I’ve always loved academics, loved libraries, loved to study, loved research.’

“I’m an example of someone who has done that,” Dr. Drury says.

Dr. Drury began college 40 years ago, right out of high school, but soon dropped out to get married. Her mother even sent her a letter with the not-so-subtle greeting, “Dear Dropout.”

Over the next decade, Dr. Drury worked at entry-level jobs and took one college course practically every semester. “After 10 years, I had accumulated 61 hours,” she says. “I never would have finished.”

In 1985, 17 years after she dropped out of college, two things happened in Dr. Drury’s life. The younger of her two sons started kindergarten. And IWU offered its first APS class.

Dr. Drury enrolled in the program. Eighteen months later she had completed her Bachelor of Science degree in Management.

That was just the beginning of her educational odyssey:

- Eight years after earning her bachelor’s degree, Dr. Drury enrolled in IWU’s Master of Science in Management program and received her master’s degree in 1997 – the same year her youngest son graduated from high school.

- In 2004, Dr. Drury completed a Ph.D. in Organizational Leadership from Regent University in Virginia.

“I’ve always loved academics, loved libraries, loved to study, loved research,” Dr. Drury says. “Reading, any kind of reading, is my favorite thing to do.”

After a decade of managing a successful business at home, Dr. Drury re-entered the workforce full-time in 1995 when she became Director of the APS Chaplaincy program and served as an Academic Advisor to APS students.

Dr. Drury quickly moved up the administrative ranks in IWU’s adult education division. First, as Director of General Studies. And then Director of Student Services. And then Associate Dean. And, finally, Dean.

In April, Dr. Drury stepped aside from her administrative duties to return to her first love: teaching full-time in IWU’s first – and only – doctoral program in organizational leadership.

“I served on the doctoral task force and have taught in the program since it started,” she says. “They needed someone with my degree, and they needed a woman. It is a long-term decision to teach full-time, but I am looking forward to it.”

Dr. Connie Lightfoot

Administration vs. Teaching is an Ongoing Dilemma

Dr. Connie Lightfoot confesses that she is still trying to decide what she wants to do when she grows up. It’s all about something she calls the “short attention span thing.”

Dr. Lightfoot’s professional career wound through three universities – plus two stops in the corporate world – before she became a Professor of Computer Information Science at Indiana Wesleyan University in 2002.

In addition to teaching at IWU, Dr. Lightfoot also has been the interim Chair of the Division of Natural Sciences and Mathematics and now is completing a one-year appointment as Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

“IWU has been a great place to work,” Dr. Lightfoot says. “I don’t think I ever have been anywhere that is so committed to its mission. I love the fact that practically everything that happens at IWU is bathed in that mission statement.”

Now, however, Dr. Lightfoot is again facing the what-do-I-want-to-be-when-I-grow-up question: Teacher or administrator.

Dr. Lightfoot had taught part-time at Ball State University, Ivy Tech College and Taylor University, where she graduated in 1974, before moving into a full-time teaching job at Taylor.

“I enjoyed teaching, but then the short attention span thing bit me again,” she says. “I was offered and accepted the job as Taylor registrar. I really enjoyed it, but then I started my doctoral work and sort of got myself burned out.”

Dr. Lightfoot left Taylor, finished work on her doctorate and took a job as a computer programmer at the Marion School Employees Federal Credit Union. “I knew that wasn’t going to be long-term for me, but it gave me time to think what I wanted to do next,” she says.

Dr. Lightfoot returned to teaching at Ivy Tech – and thought she had found her calling.

“I really enjoyed the students,” she says. “They were so needy in a way I had not encountered at Taylor or Ball State. It was a tremendous experience, and I didn’t plan to leave there – until IWU came calling.”

Dr. Lightfoot described her move into administration at IWU as God jerking her neck.

“I really enjoyed administration when I was at Taylor, but the thing I kept coming back to is that student contact is completely different when you are in administration,” she says. “Although I had contact with students, you don’t get people coming back at Homecoming and saying, ‘You were a great registrar.’”

“I really missed that whole piece of life that is a reality for professors,” she says.

‘I love the fact that practically everything that happens at IWU is bathed in that mission statement.’

Were it not for her parents' prodding while she still was a Taylor undergraduate, Dr. Lightfoot's career might have headed in a different direction.

"Neither of my parents went to college, but they had an unwavering solidity that I was going. I never remember the day I decided to go to college. I always was going."

Dr. Lightfoot enrolled at Taylor as a mathematics education major and was doing well until she had her first encounter with the attention-span thing.

"I just decided I didn't want to be a math major," she says. "I thought I wanted to change my major to home economics. My dad told me, 'You can do home ec the rest of your life. Just stick with math.'"

And so, she did.

"I wasn't eager to move over to administration at IWU," Dr. Lightfoot says. "Teaching is where my heart is, but I see the need for administration, too. It will be interesting to see what path I follow in the next few months."

Mrs. Latrese Moffitt

Building Bridges to Love and Understanding

When Michael and Latrese Moffitt were offered jobs at Indiana Wesleyan University six years ago, Latrese wasn't sure what her job would be.

"Indiana Wesleyan really wanted Michael, but they said they had a special position for me as assistant to the president," she says. "My first job title turned out to be minority recruiter in the Admissions Office."

Mrs. Moffitt resisted, explaining that IWU needed to lay a foundation before it began recruiting more minority students.

"I can't recruit people of color to come here because we are not ready as a university," Mrs. Moffitt told administrators. "We need to do some training, and we need to have something for them to cross the bridge for. We don't want to bring people here to be wounded out of ignorance."

Mrs. Moffitt and Dr. Todd Voss, Vice President for Student Life, agreed on the need for a multicultural program on campus. But the idea was put on hold for two years while Mrs. Moffitt worked as a life coach in the Center for Life Calling and Leadership.

"Then the president asked me to serve as the interim chaplain for a year, but I was able to fit in some part-time multicultural work," she says

While Mrs. Moffitt was a logical candidate to head a multicultural program, she was torn between that and her former job as a life coach. "Just because I am a multiracial person, it doesn't mean that's the only thing I can do," she says. "I love life coaching."

Mrs. Moffitt, through prayer, turned the issue over to God, asking which job would make her most dependent on Him. Two years ago, she became IWU's first Director of Multicultural Studies.

'When God chooses to send students of color here, we need to be able to embrace them and treat them with love and respect.'

"It's a hard job, it's a difficult subject, people don't like to talk about it," Mrs. Moffitt says. "They don't see where it is biblical; they see it as a politically correct thing to do."

Today there are 29 African-American students on the Marion campus, about 1 percent of the student body, but Mrs. Moffitt is less concerned about the numbers than she is about attitudes.

"I don't think there is anything wrong about being a predominantly white institution," she says. "I just think when God chooses to send students of color here, we need to be able to embrace them and treat them with love and respect."

Mrs. Moffitt is all-too-familiar with prejudice and hatred. Biologically biracial, she was adopted by an African-American family in the predominantly white community of Clovis, Calif.

"I remember the KKK marching up and down our street; our mother had us hide under the table," Mrs. Moffitt says. "We would go out of town for the weekend, and people would break into our house and pretty much gut it. Someone threw poison meat over the fence and killed my dog when I was 6."

Mrs. Moffitt's mother had a seventh-grade education; her father was illiterate. "I had to read the mail that came to our house and explain it to my parents," she says. "I did my parents' budgeting and was doing our taxes by the time I was 12."

When Mrs. Moffitt was in high school, she sat her father down in front of a TV and taught him to read by watching Seesame Street.

Athletics proved to be Mrs. Moffitt's ticket to success. Tall and lean, she competed internationally for 20 years as a high jumper.

Mrs. Moffitt was coaching track at Bethel College in northern Indiana when a friend encouraged her and her husband to consider job opportunities at IWU. Since coming to IWU in 2001, Mr. Moffitt has been Dean of Mentoring and Accountability.

Karen Roorbach

Registrar Meets Challenge of Keeping Up with Rapid Growth

Karen Roorbach was named registrar of Marion College in the fall of 1985, the same month that the college began offering adult education classes. No one could have envisioned how this new adventure would shape not just her job but also the entire college.

"We had about 2,000 students on campus, and we had one graduation a year," Mrs. Roorbach said. "We had two full-time and one part-time employee in my office."

And, she notes, there was one computer in the registrar's office, which then was located in the basement of the Administration Building.

"Our computer system at the time was a stepchild of the Taylor University system," Mrs. Roorbach says. "When we decided to buy our own IBM system, I announced that I wanted a computer in my office – on my desk!"

"I knew the computer department thought, 'She doesn't know anything about computers.' And I didn't. I know they were thinking, 'She will never use that.'"

The computer department may have been right on the first count but wrong on the second.

"I came to be one of the so-called super users of the system," she says. "I immediately became very involved in computer development as it dealt with student records."

Fast forward 21 years, and Mrs. Roorbach now maintains records for almost 3,000 traditional students on the Marion campus plus another 11,000 students enrolled in adult classes in Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio – and online.

In 2006, Mrs. Roorbach and her staff also planned nine graduations on the Marion campus and three in Cleveland. And she was a key player in arranging the inauguration of Dr. Henry Smith as IWU's eighth president.

"The change in enrollment and diversity of delivery systems has been phenomenal," Mrs. Roorbach says. "There has been a great deal of change."

'The change in enrollment and diversity of delivery systems has been phenomenal.'

Mrs. Roorbach grew up in Fort Wayne, attended Wesleyan camp meetings at Fairmount and knew as a teenager that she wanted to attend Marion College. She came to Marion in 1967, completed a degree in sociology in three years and married a fellow student, Michael Roorbach.

After their marriage, the Roorbachs lived in New York and Tennessee, but Marion – specifically the college campus – kept calling them back. They came back to stay in 1985.

"When the opportunity came, we really desired to return to Marion," Mrs. Roorbach says. "Our hearts were always in Marion."

There have been no regrets. And while many things have changed, Mrs. Roorbach says many things have stayed the same.

"As you grow, you get a little more distant from people, and that's the part I miss the most," she says. "When I became registrar, we had one graduation a year. I knew almost every student, who was graduating, what they planned to do."

"The student body today looks different in many ways, but I still see them being faithful to the calling God has on their lives. That has not changed. Students had that calling the first year I was here, and I believe students will have the same calling the last year I am here," Mrs. Roorbach says.

job openings

FACULTY JOB OPENINGS (FALL 2007) COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Studio Voice and Related Areas:

Teach studio voice, class voice, vocal/opera literature, pedagogy and diction. Earned doctorate in voice, ABD or equivalent professional experience required. (Please send recordings and videotape of teaching and/or performance.)

Biology:

Teach both lecture and laboratory-oriented biology courses that will include candidate's specialty as well as anatomy and physiology. Doctorate in life or biomedical sciences required.

Neuropsychology:

Teach undergraduate research methods as well as other classes within the psychology major. Doctorate in psychology required.

Business (Two Positions):

1. Teach entry-level Foundations of Business course to freshman plus other upper-level and lower-level business courses. 2. Teach variety of upper- and lower-level business courses. Master's degree in business-related area required; doctorate preferred.

Nursing (Two Positions):

1. Teach medical-surgical nursing. 2. Teach community health, mental health or maternal child nursing. Master's degree in nursing required; doctorate preferred. Must be eligible for licensure in Indiana.

Criminal Justice:

Teach 12 hours each term plus provide leadership to major as department coordinator. Master's degree required; doctorate preferred. Experience in criminal justice and teaching preferred.

Communication, Journalism:

Teach undergraduate courses in news writing and reporting, investigative reporting, magazine writing, online media and media management. Serve as advisor to campus newspaper. Doctorate preferred; master's degree and significant professional experience required.

Communication, Media Generalists:

Teach courses in general media and communication arts curriculum, including mass communication, introduction to human communication, video production and audio production. Master's degree and doctorate in progress required.

Art Historian/Gallery Director:

Expand and coordinate art history curriculum; direct activities for two gallery spaces; develop a guest artists/lecturer series. Doctorate in art history required with a record of research and presentation activities within professional and educational associations.

Associate Athletic Director:

Teach (25 percent) and assist Director of Athletics with administrative duties (75 percent). Additional duties include mentoring, advising and developing coaches and student-athletes. Master's required; doctorate preferred in athletic administration or related field.

Send curriculum vita to:

Pamela J. Sempel
Administrative Assistant to Dean
College of Arts and Sciences
Indiana Wesleyan University
4201 S. Washington St.
Marion, IN 46953

Graduate Nursing Program:

Teach classes at sites throughout Indiana and online. Master's degree in nursing required; doctorate in nursing or related field preferred. Must have national certification as a family, adult or gerontological nurse practitioner.

Complete online faculty application or request application from:

Dr. Jim Fuller, Dean
College of Graduate Studies
Indiana Wesleyan University
4201 S. Washington St.
Marion, IN 46953

Business, Accounting:

Teach accounting to adult students, primarily at campuses in central Indiana. Doctorate in business-related field required; CPA and/or CMA desired. CPA, master's degree and significant work experience in accounting would be considered.

Send resume and application to:

Kelly Ashlock
Indiana Wesleyan University
1900 W. 50th St.
Marion, IN 46953-9393

ADMINISTRATIVE JOB OPENINGS

Coordinator of Community Networking:

Oversee internship program in Center for Life Calling and Leadership. Coordinate career mentoring and job shadowing opportunities between students and working professionals. Master's degree or higher in counseling, leadership, psychology, career development or related field required.

Internet Support Specialist:

Provide technical support to students and facilitators involved in courses that use Blackboard and administer the Blackboard environment according to course schedules. Associates degree or equivalent knowledge required; bachelor's preferred.

Admissions Counselor:

Promote the university and its programs to prospective students and their influencers. Bachelor's degree required; IWU alumnus preferred.

Assistant Director for Religion Programs:

Direct College of Adult and Professional Studies liberal arts and electives programs with primary responsibility for religion programs, both onsite and online delivery. Master's degree required; doctorate preferred.

Associate Dean of the Chapel:

Provide pastoral care to students in the College of Arts and Sciences and provide an effective chapel program that connects with all aspects of university life. Master's degree and five years experience in ministry, preferably with college students, required. Must be ordained in The Wesleyan Church or similar-minded denomination.

Director of Electronic Design:

Manage the design of all electronic marketing pieces, including the university website, email campaigns, digital and/or video, TV and radio spots and other forms of emerging media. Bachelor's degree in graphic design/communication arts, plus 3-5 years experience, required.

Assistant Coordinator, Trio Scholars Program:

Ensure compliance with the federally funded Student Support Services program. Master's degree in education, psychology or student development required.

Online/Onsite Faculty Recruiter, Merrillville:

Plan and implement recruitment goals and assist with evaluating and hiring potential Adult and Graduate Studies online and onsite faculty for Merrillville (Ind.) Education Center. Bachelor's degree required; master's preferred. Weekend and evening hours required.

Send cover letter, application and resume to:

Human Resources
Indiana Wesleyan University
4201 S. Washington St.
Marion, IN 46953

Anna Shults helps her students with a lesson.

IWU Grad Anna Shults: 'The best teacher in the world'

By Melanie D. Hayes

FISHERS, Ind. – Taking a test while lying on the floor is nothing unusual for students in Anna Shults' third-grade class at Fall Creek Elementary School, near Indianapolis.

Sometimes they sit on a windowsill during exams, or rest on a pillow.

Indiana's 2007 Teacher of the Year believes a relaxed atmosphere eases students' minds so they can do their best. Mrs. Shults earned her bachelor's degree in 1997 from Anderson University and her master's degree in 2000 from Indiana Wesleyan University.

Mrs. Shults' creative ways – she also makes up rap songs to help students remember spelling words and organizes scavenger hunts for geometrical shapes – helped propel the 31-year-old educator to the status of Indiana's top teacher.

Students and colleagues, however, also cited Mrs. Shults' caring ways.

"Sometimes she gives us extra recess when we are good," said Haley Butler, 8. "She is pretty and the best teacher in the world!"

Mrs. Shults is now Indiana's nominee for the National Teacher of the Year honor, to be presented in the spring in Washington.

Mrs. Shults was chosen from 47 educators from public and private schools across Indiana. The award was presented during a surprise assembly in the school gymnasium in September.

Mrs. Shults went to the gymnasium with other teachers and students, thinking she'd hear a seminar by an education expert.

But the program quickly turned into big cheers for Mrs. Shults as Dr. Suellen Reed, Indiana Superintendent of Public Instruction, presented $1,000 from the Indiana Farm Bureau and scholarship offers from Ball State, Indiana and Indiana State universities.

"For this teacher, teaching is not just a career or a job – it's a passion." Dr. Reed said.

"At the end of the school year, she has her students write a letter to the students who will be in her class next year. Some of the letters said she is 'way cool.' They said she is flexible, caring, energetic, accepting of all students. Some said she was 'goofy,'" Dr. Reed said, then chuckled.

Mrs. Shults joined Fall Creek Elementary as a student teacher in 1996 and has been there ever since.

The Chicago native said she likes to be creative so children will make the most of their lessons and want more knowledge.

“Every student learns in his or her own little way, and it’s my job to tap into that,” she said. “I try to make each activity meaningful.”

Mrs. Shults cannot recall a dull moment as a teacher.

“Every day is different. I feed off the enthusiasm and excitement of kids and just the ability to do what I love,” she said. “It’s an everyday passion that is extremely rewarding.”

Mrs. Shults husband, Brian, teaches science at Fishers High School. While he likes teaching teens, she prefers instructing third-graders.

“Their minds are like little sponges,” she said. “They are on fire to learn. And they are not into cliques and popularity.

“And selfishly thinking, they still think their teacher is cool.”

Melanie D. Hayes is a reporter for The Indianapolis Star.

Q & A with Anna Shults

When did you decide you wanted to be a teacher?

There is nothing else I ever wanted to do. I’ve always had incredible teachers. I’ve wanted to be a teacher since I was old enough to go down in the basement and play school. I was a good kid; I was a teacher pleaser. I didn’t have one teacher who inspired me or pushed me along but, if you ask a majority of teachers who are passionate about what they do, they could rattle off a list of all their teachers. They are people you hold in high regard, they are people you respect and admire. I just wanted to grow up and be like that.

What do you like most about teaching?

It comes down entirely to a love for kids and the opportunity to shape and mold their lives. You have the ability to uplift, the ability to motivate, the ability to build self-esteem, the ability to enrich and to impact morals and values. And you often have the opportunity to do all of those things in a mere 30 seconds! It is so important that each little thing that comes out of my mouth has to be geared to a particular child in a particular situation. Saying or doing the wrong thing could impact the child all day long – or even longer.

Why did you choose Indiana Wesleyan University for your Master of Education degree?

The biggest thing that attracted me is that IWU recognized we were working professionals. The professors I came in contact with were not just pros who spent all of the time in the classroom. They had been out in the field and brought those experiences into the classroom with them. To me that was an incredible asset.

I considered Anderson University, where I received my bachelor’s degree, but realized I probably would have many of the same professors that I had as an undergraduate. IWU gave me the opportunity to study with a different group of professors with different backgrounds. IWU provided me with a high quality education and put professors in my path who were the best in their field. And, of course, the IWU format was so convenient.

What kind of responsibilities will you have as 2007 Indiana Teacher of the Year?

There actually are so many places that I will be expected to go and so many things that I will be expected to do that I have decided to take a sabbatical during the 2007-08 academic year. I really was offered three choices: take advantage of scholarship offers from three universities to begin work on my doctorate; stay in my classroom and teach, but with the prospect of missing as much as five to six weeks of school; or become a teacher-in-residence at the Indiana Department of Education. I chose the latter option.

What are your long-range plans?

I want to be in education for the majority of my life. No, change that to all of my life. I want to go where I can make the biggest impact, but it’s hard for me to think that I ever can have much of an impact outside of the classroom. I don’t want to be an administrator or a curriculum director. I just want to teach.

Terry Munday:

Godsend for a Struggling College

Terry Munday

When Jim Barnes first called Terry Munday in the summer of 1987, the two men never had met each other. An Indiana Wesleyan University alumnus who knew both men had prompted the phone call.

Dr. Barnes was the new president of Indiana Wesleyan University, which was on the brink of bankruptcy and facing an uncertain future. He was in search of a Vice President for University Advancement.

Mr. Munday, a 1970 IWU graduate, was the superintendent of schools in Blackford County. He had turned around a struggling public school system and had three years left on his contract.

"I was making $60,000 a year and had offers for even more money. Dr. Barnes could offer me only $30,000," Mr. Munday says. "He said if we could turn IWU around, the salaries could improve. But I wasn't sure if that would happen."

Mr. Munday declined the offer to become IWU's chief fund-raiser. But Dr. Barnes saw it only as a temporary setback.

"Dr. Barnes called a few weeks later and asked if I would come and spend a day on campus," Mr. Munday says. "He told me, 'Talk to anyone on campus you want. If you still say no, I won't call you again.'"

Mr. Munday agreed to take a day of vacation, which he spent on the Marion campus. He still wasn't convinced that he should accept IWU's offer.

"I still thought the college was headed for bankruptcy. People didn't realize how bad it was," Mr. Munday says. "At first, I couldn't understand why Dr. Barnes had accepted the job, but I began to see how much he loved the institution."

Mr. Munday decided it was time for a family meeting. The immediate family consisted of his wife, Linda, a stay-at-home mother, and four small children. It was Linda Munday who took the first step – actually a leap – of faith.

“Maybe we should consider what we can do for the Lord and not just for ourselves,” Mrs. Munday said, in reference to the job offer from IWU.

“Linda’s faith just pierced me,” Mr. Munday said. “I would wake up in the night in a cold sweat, wrestling with what God wanted us to do. We labored over the decision for three or four weeks before deciding it was the right thing to do.

“I called Dr. Barnes and told him, ‘I think we want to do this.’ I could tell he was elated,” Mr. Munday says.

Then, reality set in.

“I didn’t know what I was going to do,” Mr. Munday says. “I’d never done any fund-raising and neither had President Barnes, so he didn’t really know what to tell me to do.”

The IWU President and his new Vice President for University Advancement both enrolled in a class at the Indiana University School of Philanthropy in Indianapolis.

“I’m a voracious note taker, but it was overwhelming,” Mr. Munday says. “When we returned to Marion, I asked Dr. Barnes where to start. His first priority was to raise enough money to meet payroll so we could quit borrowing from a local bank.”

Mr. Munday set his sights on the businesses lining Marion’s bypass.

“I literally drove up one side of the bypass and turned around and came back down the other side,” he says. “I was making 20 to 25 calls a day – and still, at times, debating with myself why I had given up a job as a school superintendent to do this.”

It began to make sense when few merchants turned him down, and the owner of a fast-food restaurant wrote Mr. Munday a check for $1,000. “That was a big gift for us at the time,” he says. “And I made several friendships that have lasted all of these years.”

Mr. Munday then turned his attention to IWU alumni, and eventually began calling on affluent Christian businessmen around the state – and the country – who had no connection to IWU.

“In many of those cases, people knew I was coming to ask for money, but they let me come anyway,” he says. “One person told me, ‘I know what you’re doing, but it feels so good, and I’m going to let you do it.’”

Next from Mr. Munday’s creative mind came the special projects. An annual scholarship telesale, which has raised $1.3 million in its 12-year history. An annual golf tourney, which has raised more than $700,000 over the past 17 years. A getaway Florida golf tourney in February, a three-day event that raised $1.2 million in 2006.

The single biggest success story during Mr. Munday’s 19 years at IWU: a five-year capital campaign that raised $55.2 million. The campaign goal started at $36 million and later was increased to $48 million.

Mr. Munday’s reputation as a successful fund-raiser was matched only by his legendary frugality. When IWU needed to acquire property for campus expansion, he was assigned the task of negotiating the best possible price.

He solicited hundreds of thousands of dollars of in-kind gifts – including all of the merchandise auctioned at the annual telesale.

“I did a lot of things that weren’t technically fund-raising,” Mr. Munday says. “But in effect, it really was, because I was saving the University money.”

Now that he’s retired, Mr. Munday plans to write a book so he can share some of his fund-raising experiences. And he wants to do some consulting work for small colleges that struggle to raise funds.

“We were pretty creative at Indiana Wesleyan when it comes to fund-raising,” Mr. Munday says. “When you do it all with the school of hard knocks, you really learn a lot. I want to share those anecdotes, along with some lessons, in my book.”

During the 2006-2007 school year, Mr. Munday served as an assistant to the president. He is presently on a one-semester sabbatical.

‘We were pretty creative at Indiana Wesleyan when it comes to fund-raising’

IWU to Launch Transition-to- Nursing Program

Indiana Wesleyan University will begin a course of study for people with bachelor's degrees who want to earn a second degree in nursing. The accelerated program was created to address a current – and emerging – shortage of nurses nationwide.

The first transition-to-nursing class, with a maximum of 20 students, will begin in July 2007. Students who complete the 14-month course will earn a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing.

“The accelerated second degree program is designed to provide a sound foundation in nursing skills and includes leadership and research in the clinical setting,” said Dr. Karen Hoffman, Assistant Professor of Nursing. “The program also provides a foundation for pursuit of graduate education.”

The program will be offered initially only at IWU's main campus in Marion but may be extended to regional campuses later. The curriculum consists of 61 credit-hours of course work, and students will spend about 30-35 hours in class each week.

Dr. Hoffman said the program will require students to attend classes full-time. “Students will not be able to hold a full-time job, and even a part-time job will be challenging,” she said.

Dr. Barbara Ihrke, Chair of the Division of Nursing, said program organizers are seeking ways to provide financial assistance for students. “We are hoping that employers, such as hospitals, will say ‘We want to help with a scholarship for a particular student.’”

All IWU nursing degrees are accredited by the Commission for Collegiate Nursing Education.

Dr. Hoffman, who joined the IWU faculty in 1996, is developing the new program. For information about the program, contact the Division of Nursing at 765-677-2269 or karen.hoffman@indwes.edu.

Brandon McCarty, who lives in Elwood, Ind., plans to enroll in the new program. He has a bachelor's degree in pre-medicine from Tri-State University in northern Indiana but already is taking prerequisite courses at IWU to prepare for the accelerated program.

Mr. McCarty said he chose the IWU program because it is close to home and doesn't take as long to complete as traditional nursing programs. He eventually would like to get his master's degree in nursing and become a nurse anesthetist.

Dr. Karen Hoffman

Primarily, however, Mr. McCarty said he was aware of the outstanding reputation of all IWU nursing programs. “They're putting out high-quality graduates who are capable of getting a job,” he said.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services says there are more than 100,000 unfilled nursing jobs in the country, and the shortage is expected to double by 2010.

Dr. Hoffman said Indiana has a shortage of nurses greater than 10 percent, and that deficit is projected to grow to 31 percent by 2020.

“A primary purpose of the accelerated second degree program in nursing is to provide an expedited method for graduating more Indiana nurses with bachelor's degrees,” she said.

Dr. Willem Van De Merwe

Dr. Van De Merwe Gets U.S. State Department Fellowship

Dr. Willem Van De Merwe, who teaches physics at Indiana Wesleyan University, has received one of a few fellowships granted annually by the U.S. State Department. He will be a visiting scholar in Washington, D.C., during the 2007-08 academic year.

Dr. Van De Merwe, a native of Holland, came to the United States in 1976 to finish his doctorate at Clemson University. He began teaching at IWU in 1995 and now holds IWU's only endowed chair, the Blanchard Chair in Physics and Mathematics.

As the William C. Foster Fellow Visiting Scholar, Dr. Van De Merwe will be assigned to the Bureau of International Security and Nonproliferation, which reports to the Under Secretary of State for Arms Control and International Security.

Dr. Van De Merwe will work with a variety of national and international organizations, directly affecting U.S. policies and global security.

"This is a high honor for Dr. Van De Merwe and for our Institution," said Dr. Bud Bence, Vice President for Academic Affairs. "God has given him a unique opportunity to work among those who are peace-makers, not only representing our country but the Kingdom of God.

"We are confident that the world could be changed through the contributions of our colleague," Dr. Bence said.

In 1983, while he still was a Dutch citizen, Dr. Van De Merwe joined the U.S. Army. He became a U.S. citizen while he was on active duty in the Army.

Dr. Van De Merwe, now a colonel, continues as a reserve officer in the U.S. Army Medical Service Corps, with a specialty of nuclear medical science. For the past six years, he has been assigned to the U.S. Army Office of the Surgeon General.

'We are confident that the world could be changed through the contribution of our colleague.'

In his current Army role, Dr. Van De Merwe has been involved in issues ranging from writing security policies and providing technological expertise, to coordination with NATO allies in support of the health of U.S. servicemen – as well as civilians and even U.S. adversaries.

For several summers, Dr. Van De Merwe worked as a senior biophysicist for the Henry M. Jackson Foundation for the Advancement of Military Medicine. His work there centered on research related to rapid detection and identification of harmful biological organisms.

Kerry Kind Receives Honorary Doctracte

The Rev. Kerry Kind received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree Dec. 16 at Indiana Wesleyan University. Dr. Kind spoke at three graduations during which 1,505 students received IWU degrees.

Dr. Kind is the General Director of Education and the Ministry for The Wesleyan Church. He has a bachelor's degree from Purdue University in communications and Master of Divinity and Master of Theology degrees from Asbury Theological Seminary.

Dr. Kind served as a Wesleyan pastor and a missionary to Africa before assuming his current job in 1997. He is the denominational liaison for the five colleges and universities, including IWU, that are sponsored by The Wesleyan Church.

Dr. Kind is married to the former Jule Lytle, who earned a degree at IWU in 1972. She is the Director of Off Campus Library Services for IWU's adult education programs.

The Kinds have three children, all of them IWU graduates.

Dr. & Mrs. Kerry Kind

IWU Hosts Forum for Adult Education Leaders

About 50 administrators from Christian colleges throughout the nation gathered Feb. 16 at Indiana Wesleyan University to discuss ways to meet the unique needs of adult learners.

The forum, titled "A Consultation on Adult Higher Education: Setting a Research Agenda," was sponsored by the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities, a Washington-based association of 102 Christian colleges.

IWU is a recognized leader in adult education programs. More than 30,000 students have received degrees since the program began in 1985. Currently, 11,000 students are enrolled in adult classes at sites in Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio and online.

Most of the forum was devoted to brainstorming sessions aimed at setting an agenda for collaborative research in adult higher education and formulating ways to benchmark learning outcomes.

Almost 40 colleges were represented at the forum.

Dr. Ron Mahurin, Vice President for Professional Development for the Coalition, opened the forum. Dr. Sharon Drury, Dean of IWU's College of Adult and Professional Studies, and Dr. Cynthia Tweedell, Associate Dean for Institutional Effectiveness at IWU, arranged the brainstorming sessions.

IWU to Offer Associate Degree in Nursing at Greenwood

Indiana Wesleyan University will offer its first Associate of Science in Nursing (ASN) degree program starting June 26 at IWU's new Greenwood Education Center, which is scheduled to open in May.

The ASN program is designed for adult learners, and the majority of classes will be offered in the evening and on Saturdays. Applicants must have proof of high school graduation or GED certification – plus a minimum of two years of full-time work experience beyond high school.

Class sizes for the nursing program will be limited.

The curriculum is designed to prepare students for careers as registered nurses or for practice in entry-level health care positions. Graduates of the program will be eligible to take the NCLEX-RN examination to become licensed as registered nurses.

The ASN degree also will qualify students to continue their education in a Bachelor of Science nursing program. The program is approved by the Indiana State Board of Nursing.

For more information about the ASN program, call 800-895-0036 to speak with a program representative or visit the website at <http://caps.indwes.edu/nursing/asn/>.

IWU's new $3.2 million Greenwood campus is located at the south edge of Indianapolis. The Greenwood facility will be the first of IWU's regional campuses to feature a 1,500-square-foot nursing laboratory.

A Banner Season for IWU Athletics

It doesn't get much better than this for Indiana Wesleyan University's fall athletic teams. Here's what IWU teams accomplished during the fall of 2006:

- Won seven regular season conference championships and one tourney championship.
- Had three coaches named Coach of the Year.
- Had three athletes named conference Players of the Year.

Here are the details.

Bratcher Receives National Merit Award

Dr. John Bratcher, who has coached women's soccer teams at Indiana Wesleyan University since 2002, received the 2006 Collegiate National Merit Award that is presented by the National Intercollegiate Soccer Officials Association.

Dr. John Bratcher

The annual award is given to coaches "whose reputations are recognized as praiseworthy and reflective of the highest standards of professional and ethical behavior."

Dr. Bratcher, a member of the National Christian College Athletic Association (NCCAA) Hall of Fame, earned his 400th career win of his 26-year coaching career during the 2006 season. His record now stands at 411-175-38.

The 2006 season also gave the Wildcats their fifth consecutive Mid-Central College Conference (MCC) title under Dr. Bratcher, who also was named MCC Coach of the Year for the third time. He was the NCCAA Coach of the Year in 1982 and 1985.

In addition to his accomplishments on the field, Dr. Bratcher has held many positions in soccer administration. He has served as the MCC Women's Soccer Chair since 2002 and was on the NSCAA Ethics Committee for seven years.

Over the course of his career, Dr. Bratcher has been involved in community service both locally and around the world. He has been involved in seven international mission trips.

Women's Soccer

The Lady Wildcats won a share of the Mid-Central College Conference regular conference championship before losing in the semifinal round of the NAIA Region XIII tourney to finish the season 19-6-1 (7-1 in the MCC). Coach John Bratcher got his 400th career win, and senior Myca Brusco was named MCC Player of the Year.

Men's Soccer

The Wildcats won the MCC regular season title outright en route to a 14-3-3 record (6-1 in the MCC). Third-year Coach Mark Castro was named MCC Coach of the Year, and junior Matt Grabner was named MCC Offensive Player of the Year.

Women's Volleyball

The Lady Wildcats finished the season 31-9 to win the MCC regular season championship. The team then went on to win the MCC tournament for the fifth year in a row and advanced to the finals of the NAIA Region XIII tourney. Candace Moats won her fourth MCC Coach of the Year award and also was named NAIA Region XIII Coach of the Year. Senior Rebekah Reichard was named MCC Player of the Year.

Women's Tennis

The Lady Wildcats finished the season 13-0 (8-0 in the MCC) to win the conference title for the 14th year in a row. The team went on to win the MCC tourney, with 26 of a possible 27 points.

Men's Tennis

The Wildcats finished the season 7-3 (6-1 in the MCC) to share the conference title.

Men's Golf

The Wildcats won the National Christian College Athletic Association (NCCAA) title for the second year in a row. And Steve Evans was named Coach of the Year, also for the second consecutive year.

Cross Country

The men's cross country team placed five runners in the top 15 to win the MCC championships, and the IWU women's cross country team finished second. IWU hosted both meets.

Cheer Team

The IWU Cheer Team finished fourth in national competition in Orlando, Fla. It was the best finish for the team in the 10 years it has competed nationally. The team also finished first in the first-ever Fellowship of Christian Cheerleaders national competition.

alumni profile

40s

Rev. Robert '47 and Jeanette (Bryan 1946) Mattke recently celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary with their family in Henrietta, N.Y. Robert graduated from the University of Wisconsin, the University of Iowa and Asbury Theological Seminary. After their pastorate at Hayward, Wis., they went to Australia to be principal of Kingsley College. When they returned in 1961, Robert taught Bible and Wesleyan Theology at Miltonvale Wesleyan College and concluded his teaching career at Houghton College. In 1972, he served as President of the Wesleyan Theological Society. Now they are in the midst of four generations living in the Rochester, N.Y., area with their daughter, Sharon, and her husband, Duane Buttermore.

Rev. & Mrs. Robert Mattke

Adena (Seguine '48) Holsinger was awarded the Lifetime Service Award by The Missouri Federation of Music Clubs. She was honored for her work in support of music in the state and local community, including initiating the Junior Music Festival as well as serving as secretary of the Missouri Federated Music Clubs and treasurer of the Missouri State organization. Adena has also been involved in Daughters of the American Revolution and Ladies Auxilliary of Evangel University. To this day, Adena continues to teach the art of music through piano lessons to children in the community.

Leone Campbell '49 – Four

Leone (King '49) Campbell is pictured in this four-generations picture with son, Jon Campbell '76, Great

50s

Rev. Leigh Franklin Nygard '59 has retired as Pastor-Counselor at the Galesburg Rescue Mission Homeless Shelter, after 17 years of ministry. Previously he pastored churches in Illinois and Washington for 29 years. He is an associate General Evangelist for The Wesleyan Church and is open for scheduling. His wife Judith (Haynes '62) Nygard has been retired from public school teaching for three years.

60s

Martha (Stratton '64) Alt retired from Ohio State University Libraries in June 2006, after 34 years in various positions in the library, most recently as General Humanities Bibliographer. She is currently an elementary school librarian, in the Worthington Christian School system – quite a change from the university scene! Her husband, Richard, is a real estate broker in Columbus, and she has three children and one grandchild.

70s

Tim & Diane (Eisaman) Fisher '76 moved to Virginia in 2002 and have recently settled in Front Royal, Va., located in the beautiful Shenandoah Valley. Tim is the Director of Planned Giving for the National Rifle Association in Fairfax. Diane is a Prevention Educator for The Warren Coalition, and Program Manager for their Drug Free Communities Grant. Their son, Seth, a traffic engineer, lives in Arlington, Va. Their daughter, Melissa, and husband, Bryan Ventre, live in Lynchburg, Va., where Melissa is an Assistant Proposal Manager for Tyco-Macom.

Rev. Jeffrey Botsford '77 was promoted to Major in August of 2006. He is a Squadron Chaplain with the 2nd Stryker Cavalry Regiment in Vilseck, Germany.

80s

Lori (Vincent '83) Timberlake graduated with a Master's degree in Nursing at Franciscan University of Steubenville, in August 2006. She is board certified by the American Nurses Credentialing Center as a Family Practitioner and is employed by Jefferson Behavioral Health System as a Nurse Practitioner and Nursing Coordinator of the Pharmacological Management Unit. She is also employed by Franciscan University as a part-time Psychiatric Nursing Instructor. She lives in Brilliant, Ohio, with her husband, Mel, and daughter, Ashley.

Nathan '86 & Jennifer (Brehm '86) Wilson had their third child, Simon Andrew Wilson, on Feb. 16, 2007. He is named after Nathan's grandfather, Simon Albert Gillum, who died in May 2006. Their oldest child, Brandon, is 13 and then Hannah is 8. Nathan has worked for almost eight years for TCN Behavioral Health Services – a community mental health center in Greene County, Ohio. He is a Licensed Professional Clinical Counselor (LPCC). Nathan works in the outpatient mental health department as a senior counselor. Jennifer has worked for Kettering Medical Center for almost 18 years and currently works on the neuro floor. She has worked two years as an adjunct faculty member for Kettering College of Medical Arts as clinical instructor for the neuro rotation. Jennifer is taking a break this semester and will return to her clinical instructor position in the Fall 2007. She also is taking a short break from her master's program in nursing education which she should finish by Spring 2008 – graduating in July 2008. Her goal is to become a full-time instructor. Their e-mail address is nathwilson1965@yahoo.com, and they would love to hear from others that they knew while in school.

Ruth (Bragg '87) Masiongale, RN, has earned the title of Certified Professional in Healthcare Risk Management from the American Hospital Association. In order to receive this award, she had to meet eligibility requirements such as work experience and education, while also passing the CPHRM exam, which tests knowledge, management, risk financing, operations and bioethics.

Dr. Thomas Metallo '88 is an Associate Professor with Liberty University's Helm's School of Government. He teaches political science and international studies courses in American Constitutional Government, American Political Parties, Comparative Governments, International Law, U.S. Foreign Policy, and area studies in the Politics of Latin America, Asia and the Middle East. He travels internationally and teaches for Liberty with Summit Ministries. He also coaches the men's lacrosse team, which is a club sport at Liberty University. He and his wife, Joyce, lead international student trips, and they continue to host students as frequent guests in their home.

90s

Dorothea (Cummings '90) Allen would appreciate hearing from anybody who attended IWU from the years 1986 to 1990. You may e-mail her at candeelymon6@aol.com or llubmoikat@aol.com.

Heather (Smith '92) Simon was married in September 2005 to Andrew Simon and became a full-time mother to his then 7-year-old daughter, Abigail. Heather started working for MPSC as a DOD contractor in November 2005. She was one of the top recruiters for the company, recruiting doctors and dentists for the National Guard in the Southeast. She is privileged to presently work with her husband CW2 Andrew Simon, the Special Branch Recruiter for Georgia. He has been the U.S. No. 1 Special Branch Recruiter for the National Guard several times in the last couple of years. Heather is still a part-time soldier for the Georgia National Guard, in which she received a promotion to captain in November 2006 as Medical Service Corps Officer, and she plans to change her branch to become a Chaplain for the State of Georgia.

Paul Barker '94

Paul Barker '94 was honored recently with inclusion into the Foundry Hall of Honor. Foundry is a management and technology publication. Paul was included in the September 2006 issue. This honor was received because of the efforts he has made within the metal casting industry to address the many opportunities for improvement that exist in an old industry. In the history of metal casting in the United States, he is only one of 10 people who has received both a Gold Medal from the American Foundry Society and the Walsh Award from the Foundry Educational Foundation. He is now retired from Dalton Foundries in Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Dr. Aaron Haney M.D. '94 recently moved to Clarksville, Tenn., where he is serving as an Army psychiatrist for the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky. He was deployed to Iraq in November 2006 and would covet your prayers for himself, his family and for all those suffering in that country.

Tonia (Dalasinski '95) Vasquez is working with the Saginaw Intermediate District Head Start as a Family Service Advocate. She works with families, enrolling them into the two-year pre-school program and working with them in their family partnerships.

Sean VerLee '96 has accepted the position as the Personal Lines Account Executive of Miles & Finch Insurance in Kokomo, Ind. He enjoys meeting with clients and has a wonderful staff. He is very active in community organizations and a volunteer worship leader in his church. His wife Jamie is a registered nurse and they have a 14-month-old son named Samuel Parker.

Mitch '97 & wife Anne (Reed) Cartrette just had their third child, Jake, on Dec 16, 2006. They have a daughter, Claire, who will soon be 6 and another son, Landon, who just turned 4. Mitch just started as the Family Life Pastor at Wendover Hills Wesleyan in July.

Dr. Dawn (Diedrich '97) Lagerkvist, a family practitioner, has returned to Marion to join the staff of Marion General Hospital. She was recently in the Vim & Vigor Spring 2007 publication for Marion General

Briana ('98 Warne) Stopp & Family

Hospital. She completed her residency in June 2006 at Fort Wayne Medical Education Program.

Teresa (Dickerson '97) Schaaf opened her first on-line tutoring center called The Rock Foundation Education and Activity Center. Visit it at www.therockfoundation.net.

Briana ('98 Warne) Stopp lives with her husband Tony, stepdaughter Meagan (15), daughter Mikaylee (5-1/2) and son Andrew (3). They moved this summer to 1118 Overlook Road, Marion, Ind. 46952. Her e-mail address is bristopp@yahoo.com. Tony and Briana own a packaging and staffing company so Briana stays very busy running the office plus going to cheerleading, dance and sporting events with the kids. They would love to hear from old friends!

alumni news

Diana (Kickery '98) Ashley received her license as a worker with the Christian and Missionary Alliance, ministering as an officially recognized chaplain on May 1, 2006. She graduated Cum Laude from Liberty University, in Lynchburg, Va., with her Master of Arts in Religion on May 13, 2006.

Matt Cannon '98 has been named sales manager for Lee Wetherington Companies in Sarasota, Fla. He will oversee sales operations for the homebuilding division of the company and also acts as the principal broker.

Harry De La Cruz '98 received a degree in marketing, Summa Cum Laude, from the University of Phoenix.

Robin (McCallum '99) Adams was recently promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel and currently is serving in Kandahar, Afghanistan, in the Multination Medical Unit Hospital with the 14th Combat Support Hospital from Ft. Benning, Ga. She is assigned as the Senior Clinical Nursing Leader and Intensive Care Nurse, proudly serving our American Military and its coalition members in Afghanistan.

Joshua Buck '99 was injured in a swimming accident while vacationing in Mexico. He currently faces three months of rehabilitation in Grand Rapids, Mich., and major life changes. Please pray for Josh, his wife, Shelly (Syswerda '99) and their family. Josh is co-pastor for Greenhouse Ministries, a church plant in the Grand Rapids area. Please visit www.greenhouseministries.org.

00s
Sarah (Gilmore '00) Krueger is married to David Krueger '99, and they have one son Zachery (22 months) and a baby is due in May of 2007. David now works as an insurance agent with Doehring Schultz in Alma, Mich., and Sarah works at MidMichigan Center as a Medical Social Worker. Sarah received her Master's degree in Social Work in 2002 from Michigan State University. The family attends Merrill Wesleyan Church and now is involved in the worship team there.

Mark A. Moore '00 wrote his first book, The Rhythm of Prayer, which was published in November 2006 by Wesleyan Publishing House. The Rhythm of Prayer is a 40-day personal prayer liturgy that guides the reader through a deep and meaningful experience in prayer.

Dr. Stuart Strother '00 wrote a book with his wife Barbara as co-author. The book, Living Abroad in China, was published by Moon Publications.

Shirley Dillon '01 earned a spot in Who's Who in American Educators. She works at Pyle Elementary School as an academic support provider as well as tutoring students every day who need extra help.

Amanda Highsmith '01 moved to Kansas City, after graduating from IWU, to attend Nazarene Theological Seminary. In May 2004, she graduated with an M.A. in Missiology. Since graduating from the seminary, she has been working in the Child Sponsorship office at Nazarene International Headquarters. In January 2006, she went to Korea Nazarene University to teach at an English camp for two weeks. She loved teaching so much that she applied to serve at KNU as an ESL professor. She has learned that she has been hired and will be leaving in February to teach for at least two years.

Rev. Bryan Purvis '01 and his wife, Andrea (Forgeng '01), have moved back to Indiana and are now at Fountain City Wesleyan Church in Richmond, Ind.

Elizabeth (Lahni '02, '05) Boswell was married to Chip Boswell of Swayzee, Ind, on July 22, 2006. Beth currently teaches eighth-grade English at Oak Hill United School Corp. in Converse, Ind. She obtained her Master's in Education from Indiana Wesleyan University.

Heather Du Vall '02 passed the Certified Accountants Examination during the 2006 testing cycle. She succeeded on her first attempt. She will be recognized for her accomplishment at the 2007 Indiana CPA Society Annual Awards Dinner.

Mark (Robert) '02 and Michelle (Luehmann '00) Hallett '02 were married in August 1998. They currently have four children; Nathaniel, 6, Rachel, 4, Isaiah, 3, and David, 1, and they were expecting again in October 2006. Mark is employed as a Business Manager down the aisle

Jeremy Stewart & Jamie Salisbury '02 • 10/29/05

Eric Johnson & Meghan Brunsting '01 • 8/06

David Cain & Deborah (Tolan) Sigworth '82 • 10/28/06

Adam Renbarger '03 & Sila Hill • 10/8/06

Tyler Ashley & Tammi Zimmerman '02 • 9/9/06

Seth Clayton '05 & Abigail Fick '05 • 11/11/06

Brennan Summers '04 & Jennifer Walker • 8/18/06

Michael Hochstedler & Jennifer Alexander '05 • 7/2/06

Chip Boswell & Elizabeth Lahni '02, '05 • 7/22/06

Joshua & Rachael Kelly

future alumni

Brad '94 & Julie (Thomas '93) McIntosh – Lillian Estelle · 8/21/06
 Jason & Kendra (Fox '02) Stutzman – Alexander Lee · 10/18/06
 Mitch '97 & Anne Cartrette – Jake · 12/16/06
 Robert & Julie (Ploetz '95) Dahlin – Kenton Lee · 4/18/06
 Anthony & Matescia (Thompson '06) Stroud – Gabriel A.K. · 9/11/06
 Dale & Jennifer (Johnson '04) South – Boston Isaiah · 8/12/06
 Bruce '92 & Cara Smith – Jaalah Grace · 11/10/06
 Todd & Amy (Logan '94) Winkler – Kathryn Lynn · 7/21/06
 Stephen '99 & Lori (Boss '00) Anthony – Aiden Tyler · /16/07
 Michael & Llita (Crum '05) Colyer – Elijah Jamin · 12/1/06
 Ryan & Cherie (Pasbjerg 96) Naffziger – Sofia Viena · 10/17/06
 Eric & Lesley (Walker '02) Babson – Ava Janae · 11/7/06
 Dustin & Rebecca (Richter '01) Engelman – Jack Stephen · 8/8/06
 David & Heather (MSM 196) Adkins – Clare Elizabeth · 9/23/06
 Mark & Sharon (Ferree '88) Winebrenner – Eli James · 6/5/06
 Ryan '99 & Robin (Ayers '00) Cool – Jackson Ryan · 7/2/06
 Kevin & Michelle (Northcutt '95) Grifhorst – Levi Micah · 8/24/06
 Vince & Laura (Newton '99) Grabovac – Ethan Joseph · 10/29/06
 Jesse '03 & Jessica (Bowman '02) Newcomb – Corban Scott · 10/15/06
 Matthew '06 & Kristina Throne – Alexis Grace · 11/10/06
 Nathan '86 & Jennifer (Brehm '86) Wilson – Simon Andrew · 2/16/07
 Mark '96,'04 & Louann (Funaiock '96) Alexander – Isaiah Lee · 1/2/07

Aiden Tyler Anthony

Ethan Joseph Grabovac

Alexis Grace Throne

Ava Janae Babson

Boston Isaiah South

Elijah Jamin Colyer

Isaiah Lee Alexander

Jackson Ryan Cool

Levi Micah Grifhorst

Corban Scott Newcomb

Sofia Viena Naffziger

with TLC Ministries in New Castle, Ind. Michelle is a full-time at-home mom.

Rachael Kelly '02 and Joshua Johnston were married on June 24, 2006, in Michigan City, Ind. The couple resides in Florissant, Mo. Rachael is a freelance editor for the Christian

Board of Publication in St. Louis and is a teacher's aide in a classroom for autistic preschoolers. She previously has been a copy editor, page designer and faith editor for The News-Dispatch in Michigan City. Joshua teaches high school social studies.

Anna (Putman '02) Shults is Indiana's nominee for the National Teacher of the Year honor, to be presented in Washington, in the spring. She was chosen from 47 other educators, from public and private schools.

Samantha (McVicker '02) Joslyn passed

alumni news

the Indiana State Bar Exam last July and began working for a small law firm in Demotte, Ind., in March. She works on a variety of assignments and truly feels that she is living out the calling God has for her, at least right now. Her husband, David McVicker '02, is currently getting ready to finish his last year of seminary at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago and will have his Master of Divinity degree. This school year he will be working at Ogden Dunes Community Church as an intern associate pastor. In his spare time, he has been substitute teaching in several local school districts where they live.

Seth Conley '03 has accepted a job as morning news anchor and general assignment reporter at WLFI-TV, a CBS affiliate in Lafayette, Ind. He started his career in radio at the age of 16 at WSHW Shine 99 in Frankfort, Ind. In 1999, Seth won the State Championship for the Indiana High School Forensic Association in the event of Broadcasting. He has served as the technical operations coordinator at the IWU campus TV station since 2003. He has also been the producer and reporter for Crossroads and was also anchor of the daily Chronicle-Tribune Newsbrief, both airing on WIWU-TV.

Ryan Haworth '03 has accepted the position of Youth Pastor at New Life Wesleyan Church in La Plata, Md. He previously served as Youth Minister at Mentone Community Church in Mentone, Ala.

Ann E. (Clausen '03) Newhouse graduated in May 2006, with a Master of Social Work degree, from the University of South Carolina. Her husband, Jabin, is a director for Aramark at Providence Heart Hospital in Columbia, S.C. Ann currently works as a counselor at Center of Change in Camden, S.C.

Adam Rollefson

Hope G. (Thomas '03) Pace was recently hired as Account Manager for Bader Company within the Business Development Department. She is responsible for providing Corporate Training and Development to Multi-Family/Self-Storage industry.

Eric Greenwald '04 has taken the position of Sales & Marketing Specialist with ICTNS, an information technology company.

Adam Rollefson '05 (B.S. Christian Ministries), was recently hired as the interim high school pastor at the Crystal Cathedral in Orange County, Calif. Adam is a student at Biola University's Talbot School of Theology, near Anaheim, pursuing his M.A. in Christian Education degree, specializing in youth ministry. He plans to graduate in May 2008, after which he anticipates being a high school pastor in Southern California. Adam was also recently named the president of the newly formed IWU Southern California Alumni Association.

Greg Smitley '05 was chosen as the President and CEO of MarkleBank in September of 2006. He has been involved in the Finance Committee of the Community Development Corporation, the Indiana Bankers Association Government Relations and Commercial Lending Committees, the Board of Advisors of the Graduate School of Banking, the Fort Wayne Chamber of Commerce, the Northeast Business Alliance, Rotary International and Junior Achievement. He also is involved in many other community activities.

David Hunt '06 was recently promoted to Deputy Commander of DMORT region V. DMORT is a federal disaster response team for mass fatality incidents. David served eight weeks in Louisiana after hurricane Katrina & Rita, and served in NYC after 9/11. More information on DMORT can be found at www.DMORT.org.

Shawn Janofski '06 has been selected as PacSetter agent. He is employed with Wuertley Insurance Agency LLC, in Marion, Ind.

APS

Susan Wilson '00 was named Empire's Who's Who Professional of the Year representing Respiratory Care in the Healthcare Industry. She is a Physician Extender of Respiratory Critical Care Associates and holds four National Board for Respiratory Care credentials. She is a member of American Association for Respiratory Care and Indiana Society for Respiratory Care. She has had two articles published in respiratory care journals and one article won the Richard Alan Literary Award.

Christopher Crabtree '01 recently joined the executive staff of Indiana Lt. Gov. Becky Skillman as Policy Advisor. He previously served as Deputy Chief of Staff to U.S. Representative Mike Sodrel.

Michael Howe '03 (MSM) has been named the Executive Director of the Social Health Association of Indiana.

Phil Yeager (MSM 61), in September, was named President of Peloton Business Group, Inc, the Alternative Board for Northern Indianapolis and Hamilton County.

Heather Adkins (MSM 196) has been promoted to Vice President, Marketing and Community Relations, at The Christ Hospital. She is responsible for the divisions of Marketing, Public Relations, Patient Relations, Patient Satisfaction, Community Relations, Governmental Relations, Physician Relations,

IN MEMORIAM

Harold E. King '50 • 10/24/06
Beatrice Lelear '75 • 1/8/07
Emogene G. Andrlick '71 • 7/30/04
Francis L. Ott '50 • 11/9/06
Elizabeth (Hutchinson) Carter '32 • 11/11/06
Joseph G. Huber '88 • 11/9/06
Corwin Whittum '57 • 1/3/07

LIVING MEMORIALS
IN MEMORY OF

Mr. Maurice Andrea
Mr. and Mrs. Ben Medows

Ms. Esther Berg
Mr. Allen Norris
Ms. Betty Plunkett

Dr. and Mrs. Allen Bowman
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mr. Gary Brownlee
Mrs. Cynthia Harding
Mr. Joe Horstman
Mr. Terry Mason
Ms. Peggy Reese
Mrs. Kathy Williams
Mr. Gary Woods

Mrs. Marjorie Cain
Mr. and Mrs. Ben Medows

Mr. Robert Conley
Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Hewson
Fountain City Wesleyan
Church

Mrs. Mary Davis
Miss Hilda Clarke

Dr. and Mrs. Charles DeVol
Miss Hilda Clarke

Miss Laura Emerson
Miss Hilda Clarke

Dr. and Mrs. Woodrow Goodman
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mr. Harold Freeman
Dr. Sharlett Gillard

Breckin Riis Hummel
Mr. and Mrs. Barry Hummel

Mrs. Vernie Knee
Miss Hilda Clarke

Rev. and Mrs. Eldon Martin
Miss Hilda Clarke

Dr. Glenn Martin
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mrs. Beatrice Lelear
Mr. Gerald Braughler
Mrs. Julia Carter
Ms. Dorothy Larson
Mr. Henry Lelear
Mr. and Mrs. Philip Payne
Ms. Rosa Romano

IN HONOR OF

William J. and S. Naomi Herring
Mrs. Vivian Freeman

Ms. Mary Ellen Martin
Miss Hilda Clarke

Dr. Bud Bence
Miss Hilda Clarke

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Smith
Miss Hilda Clarke

Ms. Priscilla Peters
Miss Hilda Clarke

IWU Prison Ministry Team
Miss Hilda Clarke

Dr. & Mrs. Brad Garner
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mrs. Aly McCann
Mr. Bruce Whitaker

Mrs. Josephine Murphy
Mr. Jerry Baldwin
Ms. Mildred Constable
Mr. J.D. Fiehler
Mrs. Jill Holstine
Mr. Joseph Shackelford
Mrs. June Snyder
Ms. Nancy Snyder
Mr. and Mrs. Steven Snyder
Mr. Willard Snyder

Mrs. H. Marie Noggle
Dr. and Mrs. Deane Dayton

Ms. Dorothy Petrie
Mr. and Mrs. Ben Medows

Mrs. Jennie Reid
Miss Hilda Clarke

Pop and Mrs. Shoup
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mrs. Clara Goodman
Mrs. Lillian Bogumil
Mrs. Jean Chabut
Dr. and Mrs. Don Chilgreen
Mr. and Mrs. John Chin
Ms. Judy Cook
Mr. Warren Craig
Mr. Herbert Dericks
Mrs. Peggy Eubanks
Mr. and Mrs. Levi Farris
Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hahn
Ms. Sharon Halsbeen
Mr. and Mrs. Charles
Hathaway

Mrs. Artis Hoffman
Mr. Lester Holstein
Mrs. Marjorie Kientz
Mr. and Mrs. Mason Landis
Mr. John Larzelere
Miss Mary Linder
Rev. Harold Monroe
Mr. and Mrs. David Newell
Mr. Allen Norris
Ms. Betty Plunkett
Ms. Kim Queen-Townsend
Drs. Harland and Leah Ritchie
Ms. Jeanne Schlesselman
Ms. Debbie Seeler
Ms. Judy Shepherd
Mr. Richard Shirley
Ms. Anne Soderman
Ms. Marilyn Sternasty
Mr. Clifford Ward
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wing
Mr. Todd Wing
Actuarial Dept at Cincinnati
Life Insurance Co

Mr. Jack Brady
Miss Hilda Clarke

Prof. Ron Mazellan
Miss Hilda Clarke

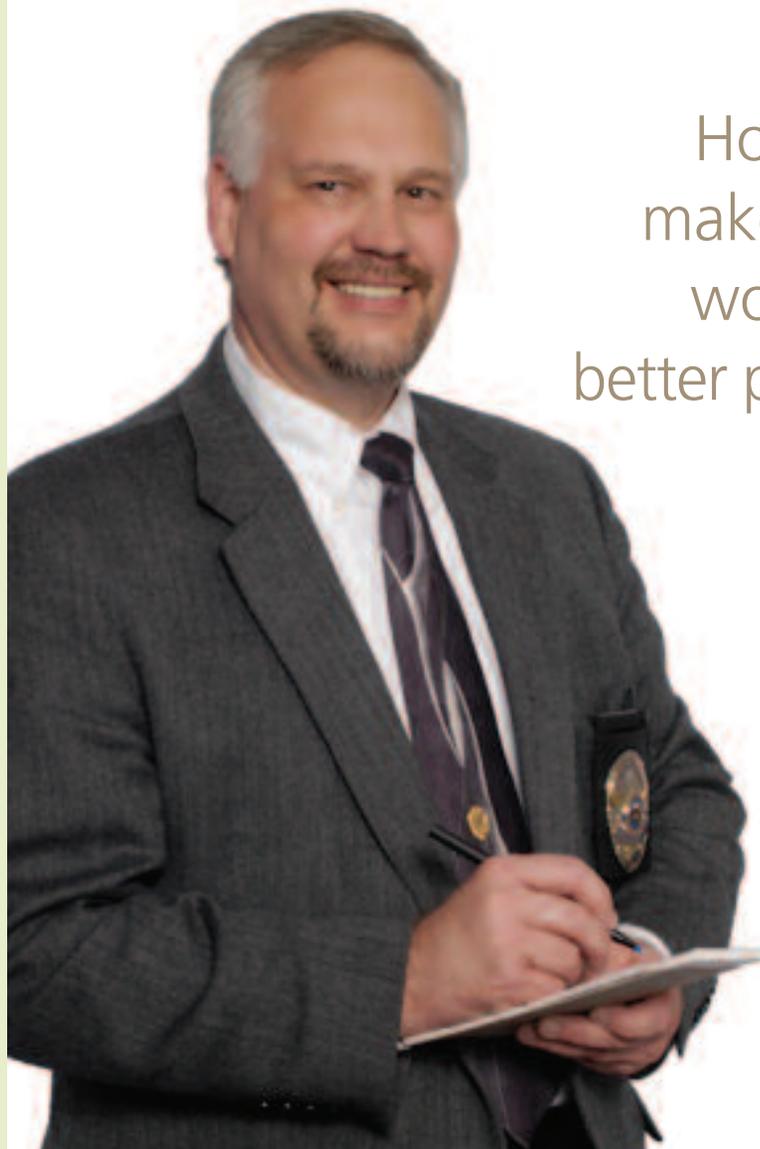

Prof. Rodney Schulling
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mr. Ben Duecker
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mr. Ben Hubbard
Miss Hilda Clarke

Mr. John Bihl
Miss Hilda Clarke

How to make the world a better place.

ASSOCIATE AND BACHELOR OF SCIENCE IN
CRIMINAL JUSTICE

IWUOnline offers working professionals online degrees in both the Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice and Associate of Science in Criminal Justice.

- Get online anytime day or night
- Complete your degree in 26 months
- Receive all books and materials through the mail
- Learn from instructors who combine academic credentials, professional expertise
- Use Web page forums, live chats, collaborative software and e-mail
- Take classes that are limited in size
- Complete course entirely online

888-IWU-2-DAY

INDIANA WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

IWUonline

Indiana Wesleyan University
is one of the fastest growing
Christian universities in the U.S.

Take a closer look...

DISCOVER IWU

850-GO-TO-IWU

www.iwu.edu • admissions@iwu.edu

Top Reasons Why Students Choose IWU

- Spiritual atmosphere
- Faculty reputation
- Academic excellence
- Outstanding campus facilities
- 90% of IWU students receive financial aid
- Over 70 majors

INDIANA WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY | 4201 South Washington Street | Marion, Indiana 46953

INDIANA
WESLEYAN
UNIVERSITY

4201 South Washington Street
Marion, Indiana 46953